Suggestions for Success

If you print out the Powerpoint slides, you can take notes on them, if you want, but they may change a bit over the course of the semester, so print them close to class time for the most up-to-date version. I STRONGLY RECOMMEND WRITING NOTES BY HAND. Recent research indicates that students who take notes on computers do not process the information very deeply as they take notes, and therefore do more poorly than those who take notes by hand. Also don’t copy everything on the slides, listen and take notes on what I am saying. You can always print/read the typed slides. You need to be thinking and organizing the ideas on your own, rather than blindly copying.

My exams require that you know the material well enough to recall facts and discuss them, not simply recognize them. You cannot study for this kind of exam in a passive way or at the last minute. Put in time each day outside of class to actively process what we are doing in class. You should try to make study tools for yourself such as topic cards (I will show an example) and get people to talk to you about the information to be sure you know it. Quiz yourself, get others to quiz you from these things. Bring me the things you are studying from if you want me to check for errors or important gaps. Don’t stop studying just because you got a concept correctly once. PRACTICE is the only way this stuff will lodge in your brain for the long-haul—and that is what it will take to do well on the exams.

Respect for Others

This course deals with sensitive material which may create a range of emotions in students. Keep in mind that the diagnoses we study very likely affect class members, their families, and friends. While some symptoms and characteristics of the disorders my cause amusement or anxiety, and a certain amount of laughter may be a natural reaction to either of these responses, please be aware of the feelings of others in the class and be respectful as we consider the range of mental health conditions.

Academic Integrity

You are expected not to cheat (copy others’ work on exams, refer to materials while taking exams, having others present their work as yours on any assignments) or plagiarize (use the words and ideas of others without giving appropriate credit). Violations of these expectations will make you subject to department and university policies regarding academic integrity, which may involve failing the course or being dismissed from the university.

Attendance

You are adults and responsible for your own learning. Regular class attendance is expected of all students, since this gives you the best probability of mastering the material. Each student is accountable for all work missed because of absence. If you miss a class meeting you should get notes from peers and review the powerpoints online. You do not need to let me know when you are missing class (unless it involves an exam), and please do not email me to ask what you missed in class or “if we did anything important.” Please note that we are required report excessive absences to the Financial Aid Department in accordance with state and federal laws.

Late/Missed Work and Exam Rescheduling

Work on Connect and character profiles for the final exam will be subject to a 10% penalty per day late. If you know that you need to be absent on an exam day, you may take the exam early without penalty by scheduling a time with me. If an emergency occurs on test day that prevents you from attending the test, you MUST DOCUMENT the event to my satisfaction to take the exam without penalty. Exams taken late for any other reason will receive 75% of the earned points on the exam (e.g. an exam scoring 100 would only earn 75 points).

Students are expected to maintain complete honesty and integrity in their academic experiences both in and out of the classroom. Any student found guilty of dishonesty in any phase of academic work will be subject to disciplinary action.
The University and its official representatives may initiate disciplinary proceedings against a student accused of any form of academic dishonesty including, but not limited to, cheating on an examination or other academic work which is to be submitted, plagiarism, collusion, and the abuse of resource materials.

All persons involved in academic dishonesty will be disciplined in accordance with University regulations and procedures. Discipline may include failure of the assignment and/or course up to suspension or expulsion from the university. The penalty may vary by instructor.

Additional information is available on the Academic Policy website (https://students.lamar.edu/academic-support/academic-policies.html).

Course Drop Policy

Students may drop a course and receive a grade of "Q" during the penalty-free period of the semester or session. For drops after this penalty-free period, grades are recorded as "Q" or "F," indicating the student was passing or failing at the time of the drop. A grade of "Q" may not be assigned unless an official drop has been processed through the Records Office. Students may drop a course online up to the census day by logging into Self-Service Banner. After the census day, courses must be dropped through the Records Office. For additional help, contact the academic advisor or the Records Office at registration@lamar.edu. Students may not drop a course during the last 20 percent of the term. Students should check the academic calendar at https://www.lamar.edu/academic-calendar for specific dates.

Students with Disability Policy

Lamar University is committed to providing equitable access to learning opportunities for all students. The Disability Resource Center (DRC) is located in the Communication building, room 105. If you are registered with the DRC and have a current letter requesting reasonable accommodations, we encourage you to contact your instructor early in the semester to review how the accommodations will be applied in the course.
